The credentialing requirements:

The basic or the core requirements most often associated with application for medical staff credentialing are reflected in the education, training, experience, and licenses of the applicants. The listed requirements should be outlined in the policy, bylaws, rules, and regulations.